The goal of WISH is to educate, empower and inspire women philanthropists.

WISH, established in 2013, fosters active involvement in the health of our community. Members pool their funds, learn about the health needs in northern Colorado and collectively decide how their money will support local programs, projects and services provided to women, children and families through UHealth and its partners.

Shared giving.

Giving circles build community through philanthropic giving. WISH provides members opportunities to learn, share and grow as philanthropists and to increase their individual impact through shared giving. Members can choose their personal level of engagement in WISH activities.

Volunteer knitters Ann Donoghue, left, and Margaret Sturgill inspect completed Knitted Knockers before the handcrafted breast prosthetics are packaged for breast cancer survivors. The women were among more than 80 knitters and other helpers who participated in the Colorado Knitted Knockers Knit-A-Thon in 2017. Yarn, knitting needles, and other supplies for the prosthetics created at the event were purchased with a grant from WISH.

What is WISH?

WISH is a women's giving circle open to anyone interested in supporting the health of our community. The annual $500 membership is tax deductible, and 100 percent of member contributions go toward WISH grants, thanks to the administrative support provided by the PVH and MCR Foundation. Through WISH, members give more strategically and are more knowledgeable about health-based issues. WISH members give back and give together.

From preparing vulnerable members of our population with prenatal education to helping our seniors maintain active and healthy lives, WISH educates, empowers and inspires women philanthropists to improve the health of our communities.
